ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS

Brian Thorn is a Sessional Instructor in the History and Canadian Studies Departments at Trent University.

Kent Worcester teaches political theory at Marymount Manhattan College. He is the author or coeditor of eight books, including C.L.R. James: A Political Biography (1996); A Comics Studies Reader (2009); and The Superhero Reader (2013). He first met Phyllis and Julius Jacobson in the late 1980s and served on the editorial board of New Politics from 1993-2007.

Milen Jissov is an Assistant Professor in modern European history and an Associate Director of the General Education Office at the BNU-HKBU United International College, in Zhuhai, China. He completed his Ph.D. at Queen's University, in Canada, in 2009, specialising in modern European intellectual and cultural history. His research interests include: the work of Hannah Arendt, the Frankfurt School of social theory, explanations of anti-Semitism formulated by modern European intellectuals, the Holocaust, the history of Modernism.

Alban Bargain-Villéger is presently employed as a contract faculty member at York University. His academic interests include the study of communist, socialist, and anarchist ideologies, parties and movements, and, more recently, the concept of micro-insularity. His current research project involves a comparative study of Arran, Borkum, and Groix, three small islands off the coasts of Scotland, Germany, and France, from 1848 to 1940.

THE CANADIAN HISTORICAL REVIEW

The Canadian Historical Review offers an analysis of the ideas, people, and events that have molded Canadian society and institutions into their present state. Canada's past is examined from a vast and multicultural perspective to provide a thorough assessment of all influences.

With works dating back to 1897, Canadian Historical Review Online is an incredible resource that addresses the research needs of contemporary historians, professors, and students worldwide.

CHR Online* is a comprehensive, fully searchable archive of Canadian history, including thousands of articles, reviews, and commentaries written by some of Canada's most influential historians.

In addition to the complete archive of past and current issues, CHR Online is a fully searchable electronic resource that addresses all your research needs. This resource includes a Table of Contents alerting service that automatically sends you a message when a new issue is available online. The CHR Online search function allows for easy searching within results and lets you filter your search for selected items. Your search results can also be organized by article summaries, abstracts or citations, and you can export links to the articles you are interested in for easy access anytime. CHR Online is a truly powerful research tool.
