

ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS

Elun Gabriel is Professor of History at St. Lawrence University in Canton, New York. He is the author of the book Assassins & Conspirators: Anarchism, Socialism, and Political Culture in Imperial Germany (Northern Illinois University Press, 2014). He has published articles on anarchism, political violence, and utopian thought in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Future projects include articles on the Imperial League Against Social Democracy active in pre-World War I Germany; politics, empire, and modernism in the works of J.R.R. Tolkien; and an analysis of the authorship of a famous anonymous work on seventeenth century Atlantic pirates. He teaches courses on modern Europe, World War I, Weimar and Nazi Germany, the Holocaust, and genocide in the modern world.

Gabriel Paxton is a PhD Candidate at Boston University in the Religion in Philosophy, Politics & Society program. His dissertation looks at the impact of Social Gospel radicalism on socialist party success in Canada and the United States. He has published research on religious nationalism in the United States and Central Europe, and his most recent article on religious discourses in American political cartoons is featured in Bloomsbury's Religion in North America collection. Gabriel was twice named a graduate fellow in Boston University's Institute on Culture, Religion & World Affairs (CURA). Additionally, he is a fellow with Communities Engaging with Difference and Religion (CEDAR), where he has participated in summer schools in Kyrgyzstan and Indonesia.

Simranjeet Kaur earned her bachelor's degree with honours in History from the University of Delhi. She is currently pursuing an M.A. in International Affairs at Boston University. Her first publication is "Agrarian Reforms, Mode of Production, and Farm Bills 2020 in Punjab." The research was conducted at the University of Delhi under the indispensable guidance and mentorship of Dr. Aditya Kaushal, whose expertise made the research possible. Simranjeet's past research focuses on the twentieth-century history of India, concentrating on areas such as land reforms, policy measures, and agrarian change. Her current research project scrutinizes the dynamics of political change in Afghanistan, exploring the trajectory of political reforms and administrative policies. It studies the complexities of historical and contemporary geopolitical landscapes.