

Contributors

Victoria Heftler is a Ph.D. student at York University in Toronto. She is a member of the Graduate Programme in Social and Political Thought, where she is working on an interdisciplinary dissertation which poses the question, “just where is the ‘below’ in history from below.”

Peter Ives is finishing a Ph.D. dissertation entitled “Vernacular Materialism: Antonio Gramsci and the Theory of Language” in the Graduate Programme in Social and Political Thought at York University in Toronto. He has written articles for Rethinking Marxism and Bad Subjects: Political Education for Everyday Life.

Lynn MacKay is an assistant professor in the Department of History at Trent University in Peterborough, Ontario. She is finishing a manuscript entitled “The Value of Virtue” which explores the understandings and experience of poverty in London between 1780 and 1820.

Marcel van der Linden is Senior Research Fellow at the International Institute of Social History in Amsterdam, Professor of Social Movement History at Amsterdam University, and editor of the International Review of Social History. His most recent book (edited with David Montgomery) is August von Waltershausen: The Workers’ Movement in the United States, 1879-1885.