

Contributors

Dominique Clément is a doctoral candidate in the department of history at Memorial University of Newfoundland and Co-Chair of the Canadian Historical Association's Graduate Student Committee. He is presently researching his doctoral dissertation examining the evolution of Canada's early civil liberties movement (1945-82) and has designed an interactive website on the Royal Commission on Espionage (www.rcespionage.com). Current research interests include social movements, constitutional history, and a comparison of the Canadian and Australian civil liberties organizations that emerged following World War II.

David Allen Harvey received his Ph.D. from Princeton University in 1999. He is assistant professor of history at the New College of Florida. He is the author of Constructing Class and Nationality in Alsace, 1830-1945 (De Kalb: Northern Illinois University Press, 2001).

Lisa Kirschenbaum is an assistant professor of history at West Chester University of Pennsylvania. She is completing a book manuscript entitled "Small Comrades: Revolutionizing Childhood in Soviet Russia, 1917-1932."

Stanislao Pugliese is associate professor of modern European history at Hofstra University and a former visiting fellow at the Italian Academy for Advanced Studies at Columbia University. He is the author of Carlo Rosselli: Socialist Heretic and Antifascist Exile and Italian Fascism and Antifascism: A Critical Anthology. He is current writing an essay on the graffiti from a Nazi prison in Rome and a biography of Ignazio Silone.